THE POOR PEDDLERS.

Benton Harbor and St. Joseph's Hebrew Traders Are Preparing to Leave.

MUST GET OUT OF THE STATE

There Are 25 of Them Here and They Cannot Afford to Pay the Required License.

A law enacted by the late legislature of Michigan and which went into effect June 1 grants permission to every township board in the state of Michigan to pass a measure requiring peddlers to pay a license ranging from $5 to $30, according to the population of the township.

This law is going to cause a loss of 100 or more in the population of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph. There are 25 peddlers, mostly of Hebrew descent, in the two cities and they are compelled by the new law to leave, and with their families and the friends who will follow them, their departure means a loss of no less than 100 persons.

The law was intended for a protection to merchants and no doubt will have the desired effect. It was drafted and lobbied through the legislature by the Grand Rapids merchants. By its passage it was expected to drive the peddlers in Michigan to other localities. It is estimated there are 10,000 of this class of tradesmen in the state and most of them no doubt will leave for states where they can do business without paying a license. Peddling is their business.

There is no other employment to which they can turn their hands and make a living, and their departure is therefore necessary. They cannot remain in Michigan and peddle for their bread. Many of them in a day's travel pass through many townships and if they paid the license each township has a right to exact the profits of their sales would be consumed and their stock in trade greatly diminished.

So far as known no township board of Berrien county has passed a peddlers' license measure, but it is expected that such measures will soon be common.

Scott, has just been arrested for rascality of some sort. He was in jail here for 18 months for stealing from a minister. He is a scamp of the first water. After his discharge from the jail he professed to reform and worked upon the sympathies of his friends. Look out for him. Don't be imposed upon by his cant and professions. He is an old hand at the business."

ABOUT THE COUNTY.

PawPaw Lake.

PAWPAW LAKE, Sept. 1.—The farmers on the south side of the lake realize the need of good roads and since harvest have been turnpiking the road between the Christian church in district No. 7 and claying and graveling it. About one more day with the force employed will see the work done to the church. Mr. Israel Kramer generously donated gravel, the Coloma merchants shovels in the pit, and the farmers the teams and men to grade it properly. Some came from the Fish district and beyond to assist in the good work. The road when settled and hardened will make a fine drive of one of the worst roads in the township. The work done is all directed at peaks well for the people of this vicinity.

The cottages around the lake are rapidly thinning out. The boarders at the various houses are going and the season of '97 will soon be a memory. Although short it has been a prosperous one for the various houses and nearly every one concerned.

Rev. A. S. Wallis of W. Concord is visiting relatives here for a few days.

Enunciated by the Leaders in Conference at St. Louis on the Great Mine Strike.

CONTRIBUTIONS OF MONEY ASKED

As the First Thing Needed—If the Strike Is Not Settled by Sept. 30 Another Meeting Called for Chicago When Other Action Will Be Taken—Sovereign and Debs Make Fiery Speeches, the Latter Intimating That Labor Has Been Pushed to the Limit.

St. Louis, Sept. 1.—The conference of labor leaders promulgated a platform yesterday and agreed that if the coal strike was not settled by Sept. 20, that day week a convention should be held at Chicago to take further action. The resolutions are preceded by a long preamble the pith of which is a pronouncement against "government by injunction" and a declaration that the courts, under the injunction, are running the country, regardless of the rights of its citizens. The courts are called judicial despots, charged with resorting to the "most shameless defiance of decency." Then the resolutions follow:

Liberty a "Stupendous Sham."

"We have met to counsel together and have come to the following conclusions that:

"Whereas, The present strike of coal miners has again demonstrated the fact that our so-called liberty is not freedom, but is a stupendous sham, under which millions are degenerating, while hundreds of thousands of men, women and children are starving in hovels and on the public highways;

"Whereas, This condition has become permanent for a large and ever-increasing number of our population as long as we permit a comparatively small class of legalized exploiters to monopolize the means of production and distribution for their private benefit—a fact again obvious in the case of the miners;

"Whereas, Appeals to congress and to the courts for relief are fruitless, since the legislative, as well as the executive judicial power are under the control of the capitalistic class, so that it has come to pass in this 'free country' that, while cattle and swine have a right to the public highway, Americans, so-called freemen, have not;

Call for General Contributions.

"Whereas, Our capitalistic class, as is again shown in the present strike, is armed, and has not only policemen, marshals, sheriffs and deputies, but also a regular army and militia, in order to enforce government by injunction, suppressing lawful assemblage, free speech, and the right to the public highway, while on the other hand, the laboring men of the country are unarmed, and defenseless, contrary to the words and spirit of the constitution of the United States. Therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we hereby set apart Friday, the third day of September, 1897, as a 'Good Friday' for the cause of suffering labor in America and contribute the earnings of that day to the support of our struggling brothers, the miners, and appeal to every union man and every friend of labor throughout the country to do likewise.

May Hold a General Convention.

"Resolved, If the strike of the miners is not settled by the 20th day of September, 1897, and announcement made to that effect by the president of the United Mine Workers, a general convention be held at Chicago on Monday, Sept. 27, 1897, by the representatives of all unions, sections, branches, lodges, and kindred organizations of laboring men and friends of their cause, for the purpose of considering further measures in the interests of the striking miners and labor in general.

"Resolved, That we consider the use of the ballot as the best and safest means for the amelioration of the hardships under which the laboring class suffers.

Looks Like a Call to Arms.

"Resolved, That the public ownership of railroads and telegraphs is one of the most necessary reforms for our body politic.

"Resolved, That we most emphatically protest against government by injunction, which plays havoc with even such political liberty as workmen have saved from the steady encroachment of capitalism, and be it finally

"Resolved, That no nation in which the people are totally disarmed can long remain a free nation, and therefore, we urge upon all liberty-loving citizens to remember and obey article 2 of the constitution of the United States, which reads as follows: 'The right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.'

DISCUSSION ON THE PLATFORM.

Sovereign Willing to Go to Jail to Test the Question of Injunctions.

St. Louis, Sept. 1.—When the resolutions committee of the labor conference reported the platform yesterday and it had been read there was a deluge of motions, none of which was acted upon, a recess being taken to 2 p. m. The delegates were eager for work, and the afternoon session was set in motion promptly at 2 o'clock. After considerable talk in which Williams, a St. Louis delegate, endeavored to have the coming convention held in St. Louis, and three or four attempts to change the date of the conference, it was decided that the matter should remain as introduced in the platform, and the labor congress will be held in Chicago on Monday, Sept. 7. The third plank of the platform was amended by the use of the word "proper" before "use of the ballot," and the resolution now reads as follows: "That we consider the proper use of the ballot as the best and safest means for the amelioration of the hardships under which the laboring class suffers."

Clemens, of Kansas, moved that the last two resolutions in the platform be considered simultaneously. He favored their adoption. Webster, of St. Louis, wanted to know if these "milk and water" resolutions disposed of the important matter of government by injunction. "If this is so," Webster continued, the matter. He wanted congress to investigate this matter.

"Why," said Sovereign, "this convention has rejected a proposition looking to this very end. Even if congress did give us the rights we want the courts of the country would still have the power of injunction and they could then throttle us. The convention should inform the world that if this matter is to be tested the miners should break all injunctions." Sovereign said he was willing to go to jail in support of his idea. "It is time," said Sovereign, "to bring the miners and courts face to face in this matter and force an issue. Fill up the jail with violators of injunctions, and when the men who started this movement are incarcerated thousands of others will be found to take their places. [Cheers.] The laboring people can vote for years but nothing can be accomplished. Let us reorganize this government," shouted Sovereign. "Let us stand up and assert ourselves. Behind these injunctions stand Gatling guns and Winchesters, but we fear them not. Let us hold up the flag and tear down the courts. We stand on our dignity and will have our liberty from this time on."

DEBS IS CALLED TO THE FRONT.

Eye He Has Appealed to the Courts for the Last Time for Justice.

The convention broke into wild cheering which developed in a minute into a spontaneous call for Debs. The famous labor leader and avowed head of the Social Democracy of this country, who had not uttered a word since the convention opened, but who had not missed a minute of its proceedings, rose from his seat and came slowly to the platform. When the cheering ceased Debs began a speech which was interrupted at the end of nearly every sentence by cheering and hand-clapping. He said: "I believe the gravity of the industrial situation in this country is well understood. It is quite evident the delegates to the convention are cognizant of the fact that civil liberty is dead in America. I have said and say again that for the last time I have appealed to the courts for justice, and shall appeal to them no more.

"The American Railway Union expended $45,000 to have the question of civil rights tested in the supreme courts of the United States only to be told that we have no rights that capital is bound to respect. Shall we appeal to the supreme courts again? No. We appeal to this convention and to the country for an uprising of all the common people in every walk of life to beat back the courts and re-enthroned the rights of the American people. Labor Day is near. What shall we do? I predict, that we will see the extraordinary spectacle of enslaved labor rattling its chains and dancing to the music. Labor is the cheapest commodity on God's earth, and yet there are those who would have it at a lower price.

"Only the other day the united voice of labor was raised against the appointment of Mr. Powderly to a federal position, and I notice that he was promptly put into the place. [Mingled cheers and hisses.] From justice of the peace to justice of the supreme court of the United States all the judicial powers of the United States are directed against labor. All the organized sources of society are against labor, and if labor expects to emancipate itself labor itself must do it." Debs then told the convention that much destitution existed among the miners of the once proud state of Indiana, and stated that 1,000 underground workers and their families were starving. He read the report of the commission appointed by Governor Mount to examine into the condition of the miners of Indiana and then took up the thread of his argument.

"The time has not quite come to incite the populace," said Debs, shaking his fist vehemently. "I serve notice on the plutocratic element of this country that we are on the eve of another meeting in Chicago which will be attended by all branches of labor. That convention will take up these same questions and will institute agitation and keep it going until the public conscience and public heart are aroused. Then will come such an uprising as the world has never seen."

Debs continued at some length, and grew more impassioned as he proceeded. When he closed the platform was adopted as it stood and the convention, after hearing some more speeches, adjourned sine die.

Yellowstone Lake.

"There is an individuality about lakes. Perhaps the most striking thing about Yellowstone lake is its high altitude. It is up among the mountains and clouds in Yellowstone park nearly a mile and a half—7,741 feet—above where the sportive summer girl sits on the beach at the Atlantic ocean while the lazy wavelets ripple about her dainty toes. But as high as it is the mountains rise higher still by thousands of feet. In a solemn, owl-like fashion they blink down at the lake, and the lake blinks back at them. These mountains are well defined peaks, and cones, and turrets, and nearly all are named. Some of them are in this way redolent of the old explorers, the men who first braved the perils and difficulties of an unknown, untrodden wilderness. Such are Colter peak and Mount Doane."

The above is taken from "Wonderland '97," a beautiful new Tourist book published by the Northern Pacific railway. It will be mailed to any address upon receipt of six cents in stamps by CHAS. S. FRET, Gen'l Travel Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

The systems of oratory and physical culture taught in this school are natural and not affected; and their superiority over other systems is apparent. ANOTHER TRANSPORT

Will Be Required to Take Care of the Car Ferry Business.

The car ferry business is increasing so rapidly that it is expected it will be necessary to put on Transport No. 1 next week. No. 4 is now doing all the work, but with her capacity of 28 cars, she was unable to bring all the freight left for her at Manitowoc on her last trip. Nine cars were in the yards awaiting transfer to Benton Harbor when she had a full cargo. The management of the ferry line predicts a tremendous business in its line within a year. Flour is beginning to move to the eastern seaboard by the ferry route and in course of a short time this product will constitute a large part of the freight carried by the ferries. On the trip preceding the last the ferry had seven cars of flour from Minneapolis, consigned to London, England. When it is learned by the western railroads that better rates and quicker time to the eastern seaboard can be made by way of the car ferries the business will increase tremendously. When the strike is off and coal begins to move again the freight business at this point must certainly increase.

Other Railway News.

The construction train on the Milwaukee, Benton Harbor & Columbus expected to complete its ballasting of the tracks between this city and Berrien Springs today, but the rain will probably interfere with its plans. As soon as such work is completed the train will be moved to the south end of the line between Berrien Springs and Buchanan and assist a second construction train in the completion of the road there. There is an immense amount of work to be done on that portion of the road and 10 days will have elapsed before traffic can be carried on.

The Milwaukee, Benton Harbor & Columbus will run a special train to Berrien Springs tomorrow on account of the free silver lovefeast at that village. The train will leave here at 12:05. Half fare tickets will be sold for that train which will be good on the regular train leaving at 7:15 in the morning. This is a splendid opportunity to visit the romantic village of Berrien Springs at a very slight expense.

An excursion of 10 coaches, carrying 319 passengers, arrived over the Big Four this morning from Goshen, Ind. The Goshen band accompanied the excursion. It was raining hard when the train arrived and the excursionists were imprisoned in the coaches for a half hour waiting for the rain to cease.

Fred P. Sin Claire has been appointed trainmaster of the Milwaukee, Benton Harbor & Columbus railway. He entered upon his duties today.

BENTON HARBOR COLLEGE BUILDINGS.

gan. It brings to the Twin Cities annually from 250 to 300 young people who spend their money here and who will spread the fair fame of these cities wherever they may go. It is assisting in an unmistakable manner in building up the character of these cities; and with generous encouragement can do much more. Benton Harbor college as it stands today represents the effort of eleven years. Unendowed, save by an unlimited supply of energy, unassisted by denominational influences, not planted on the outskirts of civilization nor in the midst of a newly settled district, but surrounded by older and well established educational institutions, its success must be the clearest indication of its usefulness and character."

In considering the advantages of the business department the superior qualifications of the instructors are paramount. Prof. Parker, the principal of the department, is a graduate of Dartmouth College, N. H., an admitted attorney and a practical stenographer and business man. While positions are not guaranteed, graduates are assisted. An important feature of the business training is the daily use of business German language.

The music department is under the charge of Mrs. F. S. Webb, a graduate of the American Conservatory of Music, Chicago, with a full corps of assistants in piano, pipe organ and voice. The director is a graduate of one of the best conservatories in the United States; and possessing a contralto voice of unusual sweetness and power. The instructor of piano is a graduate and gold medalist of the American Conservatory, Chicago. Both these ladies evinced their ability before an audience of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph people at the last annual commencement. They are without doubt two of the best musical artists that the College has ever brought to the city. All students in this department can obtain academic recognition for the work done and on completion of the course may obtain the College diploma.

Of the art and oratory department the management says: "In these associated arts of expression, the one by the facile brush and the other by the living voice, we believe our facilities for instruction are unsurpassed by classes in the college cannot fail to be of great benefit to the students."

The instructors in the University preparation department are university men and women, who have themselves passed the experience of the preparatory and the subsequent university discipline; and who therefore can sympathize with, and assist, as no other can the young student who has set his face universityward. The certificates of the college are accepted for advanced standing, thereby lessening the time at the university and consequently decreasing the expenses. Some of our students complete their courses in the university in two years, and all can do so if they remain with us for the full work of our courses.

Factories, railway and steamboat lines are desirable in any community. Scarcely less valuable from a similar point of view, is the educational institution; and from another point of view it is superior. Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor in our own state would be loth to give up those institutions that have made them famous in this and in other lands. Shall we deny that Benton Harbor college has contributed to the success of our little city—to its fame—and to its real character? Shall we deny that Benton Harbor is better for the eleven years of existence in her midst of an institution whose vigor and vitality has been tested in these last years of financial stress, when older and more opulent institutions have gone to the wall?

The fall term of the college will begin in earnest next Tuesday although on Monday, Labor Day, Prof. Edgumbe and the corps of instructors will be at the college to meet pupils and arrange for the work of the year.

THE LABOR QUESTION.

In regard to the differences between capital and labor public sentiment has undergone a great change in the past three years. During the great Debs strike of 1894 there was scarcely a single paper—none of any importance—that sympathized with the cry of the labor leaders against "government by injunction." When down in Ohio men were even enjoined from refusing to work the public looked upon the edict of the courts as filled with righteousness, for the great majority believed that a court could do no wrong.

In contrast with the newspaper comments then is the following from the Chicago Record, one of the most conservative newspapers:

"The convention at St. Louis and the discontented element it represents can be 'dangerous' and a menace to the stability of government only in so far as the grievances of which they complain are real and not fancied. Whenever men come together, therefore, and make formal complaint against government and social conditions it is the duty of the sensible and order-loving portion of the community to give careful attention to the complaint and try to ascertain, if possible, what substantial foundation there may be for it. The very worst thing to do is for persons calling themselves patriotic citizens and laying stress on the 'patriotic' to dismiss the whole matter with the contemptuous declaration that the complainants are nothing but demagogues and anarchists, and especially that their only purpose is to serve political interests. The coal miners might have lost their strike in any event. If so, and they had no complaint against the government to make in connection with the outcome, they probably would accept the result with fairly good grace. But in the present case there is a specific complaint that the power of government has been used against them, not perhaps unlawfully in the strict sense of that word, but nevertheless in an unusual manner and wrongfully.

In this can be seen a shift of sentiment and in the coming better time some of the reputed anarchists of today may appear in a very different light.

THE DETROIT NEWS prints a startling story from Mt. Pleasant. It is claimed that the Indians who have received 40 and 80 acre farms from the government are being robbed by white men. The white thieves pour firewater into the Indian and then get the intoxicated victim to sign his name or make his mark to a paper which is ostensibly a bill of sale for some trees or worthless brush but in reality is a deed for the red man's farm. Such thieves are more cowardly than housebreakers or train robbers and deserve just as great and speedy punishment.

A LOCAL paper declared in big letters last night that the coal strike was over. Many people were disgusted with what they called a fake. But the announcement was true. The coal strike is over—all over the country.

Tacoma coin and a mint that coined all of the money in circulation where the City of Destiny now stands, and it did not require the fiat of Uncle Sam, the silver of Idaho or the gold of California to make the pieces from Tacoma's mint pass current among the Indians and the few hardy pioneers who were blazing the path of civilization through the forest on the shores of Commencement bay, says the Tacoma Ledger.

Back in the early seventies the Tacoma Mill company, not being able to handle secure gold and silver for use in trading with and paying off the Indian laborers and early settlers, hit upon the novel plan of issuing its own currency, and to this end set its blacksmith to work to fashion for it out of scraps of iron and brass pieces of money, or, rather, tokens, which could be used as a circulating medium. The pieces consisted of 40 cent and 45 cent iron tokens and brass $1 pieces. The 40 cent pieces were about an inch in diameter and the 45 cent pieces were about the size of the present silver half dollar. The $1 pieces were oval in shape, about 1 1/4 inches long, an inch wide and a sixteenth of an inch in thickness. These pieces were stamped with the figures showing their value, and readily passed current all over the country tributary to the mill. Nearly all of this old "mill" coin has passed away, but a few days ago William Hanson of the Tacoma Mill company presented a set of these queer coins to the Ferry museum. In his letter to the museum he said:

"The honesty of the people and the absence of any blacksmith shop save that of the company made the use of this money possible."
Oregon has long boasted that the "Beaver" coin, minted at Oregon City in the early fifties, was the only money minted in the northwest in the days of the pioneer, but here in Tacoma, long years after Oregon's "Beaver" mint had become a historical incident, was a primitive mint that supplied the coin to furnish the pioneers and Indians with all of the necessities for their rough lives. The coins, which are still preserved, are roughly made, just such as any blacksmith with ordinary tools might make, and as a matter of fact during the early years of the mill company's existence formed practically the local circulating medium of exchange. When the Indians who were employed in the mill were paid for their labor, this coin sufficed, as all the trading they did was with the little store run in connection with the mill. The iron and brass pieces were, of course, passed among the Indians in trading with each other, and as anything in the way of supplies was purchased by them at the mill store the pieces were fully as good to them as if they had borne the stamp of the government.

Changes in Cave Dwelling Animals.
"The influence of environment upon organisms is nowhere more striking," says Science, "than in the case of animals which find themselves accidentally lost in caves and which succeed in acclimating themselves to the situation in spite of its difficulties. M. Armand Vire gives some notes on his observations in the Comptes Rendus. The principal difference in the situation consists in the absence of light and in the rarity of animal prey. The eye always becomes atrophied to a degree which varies with the species and also with the individual. There is sometimes a difference between the two eyes of a single individual. The eyes are to a certain extent replaced by other organs of sense; the antennae of the camponotus become, in some individuals, twice as long as usual, and sometimes longer than the entire body. The tactile hairs with which the body is covered obtain an exaggerated development, and in the crustaceans sometimes even invade the ocular globe. Hearing does not seem to be accentuated, but the sense of smell is very acute, and a bit of tainted flesh becomes invaded in a very few minutes with a large colony of animals. The organs of digestion become very considerably modified in those species which are naturally carnivorous, and in two staphylinids the mandibles were found to be completely atrophied. Every animal is more or less completely depigmented, but those which had no trace of color remaining began to have numerous little black spots disseminated over the whole body after they had been kept for a month in the light, and these spots were particularly abundant in those parts (antennae and claws) which had been accidentally lost and were in course of restoration."

His Last Meal.
Every day some fresh source of food supply is discovered, says The Stamp Collector. Adhesive stamps have not hitherto been regarded as nutritious. The ostrich prefers gold watches for a steady diet, and the traveling tinker's donkey has a reputation for consuming any clean linen that may be handy.
A Hindoo paper, however, gives an account of a curious incident that occurred at the residency in a remote district in Ceylon a little while ago. Mr. Pieris, the office assistant, placed on his table some judicial stamps to the value of about 200 rupees. While his attention was drawn to something else his pet goat was slowly but surely making a meal of the stamps. This was not discovered until the goat had swallowed some 50 rupees' worth of stamps. Immediately the goat's life was demanded as a penalty, and the stamps, afterward taken from its stomach, were forwarded to the commissioner.

Lepers and the Law.
The Norman-English laws enacted that a leper had neither power to sue in any court nor to inherit property. During his lifetime he was permitted to enjoy the usufruct of any property in his possession at the time he was

In an editorial declaring that the vacation is no longer for the rich alone the Chicago Inter Ocean says: "How widely enjoyed is the holiday season! It no longer is a luxury of the rich. If you cannot afford a cottage at Oconomowoc, or at Block island, or a yacht on the lake or ocean, you can hire a steamboat for a voyage to St. Joseph for 50 cents, or can have the use of a floating palace between Chicago and Milwaukee—there and back—for $1 and there are more leagues of lake air around the deck of a Milwaukee or Benton Harbor steamer than are circumbient to the most fairy-like yacht of the most fashion-haunted of the lesser lakes."

LARGE PLUMBING BUSINESS.

Phenomenal Growth of the B. L. Hall Establishment.

About seven years ago the heating, lighting and plumbing business of B. L. Hall was started in a small way in the basement of J. J. Miller's meat market.

By close attention to business and square dealing Mr. Hall soon increased his business, and during the winter of 1891 he moved into a larger and more commodious store. For three years he continued in the Field building, and here added to his plumbing trade the line of tin, sheet iron and metal work. After three years of continued business success the business was moved to the large store at 126 Pipestone street, where it is now located. The location is one of the best in the city for the business.

Mr. Hall has met with marked success in every line pertaining to his business, his aim being to furnish the best of goods at a fair price and make his work satisfactory to his customers in every respect. The plumbing and heating in many of the best business blocks and the finest residences in the city has been put in by Mr. Hall and in every case satisfaction has been given.

Mr. Hall is now the pioneer plumbing house in the city, as he has been continuously longer in business than any other firm.

Mr. Hall has just added a new department, that of hardware, to his stock. In this line he will keep a full assortment and the hardware department will be managed by his son, J. M. Hall. Everything will be offered at cash prices at figures that will move them. Some of this stock, consisting of paints, oils, farm tools, etc., was bought at mortgage sale and will be sold at corresponding prices.

AFTER DELINQUENTS.

City Council Determined on Having Good Sidewalks.

There are several property owners who have refused to comply with the orders of the street commissioner and build new sidewalks. It was expected to call a meeting of the city council tonight to pass resolutions instructing the street commissioner to rebuild such walks, but the street committee is not yet prepared to present the matter and this morning Mayor Bell decided to abandon the special meeting and take the necessary action at the regular meeting Monday night. At that time the owners of sidewalks who have ignored the request of the street commissioner and whose walks are dangerous, will be brought up with a round turn and their walks rebuilt by the city with a penalty assessed against the owners.

JOB PRINTER THE CITY...

Do you think two girls ought to be so exactly alike?" said Charlie Dacre, ruefully twisting up a cigarette. The other man laughed.

"Are you talking of those two Dennison girls? They're not exactly alike."

"It's all very well for you, but I haven't your long sight, and I declare to you if I see either of them at a little distance or in a bad light I can't tell which is which. I am going to a party tonight given by the respected parents of my Dennison, and I positively dread it."

"Perhaps they play tricks on you," said Ballantyne. "One of them is rather skittish."

Charlie got himself up that night with extraordinary care, and as he was a good looking fellow he presented a rather striking appearance as he entered Mrs. Dennison's drawing room. He had been detained, so that most of the guests had arrived when he came, and his inamorata was nowhere to be seen. But shortly after he had paid his respects to the host and hostess the daughter of the house, prettily dressed in white and blue, came up. Dacre begged for a dance—two dances.

"I'm so sorry," said she, "but I've nothing vacant till the lancers. You're a little late, Mr. Dacre, you see," with a slight accent of reproach as she gave him her card. Charlie apologized in the humblest terms, and the girl bestowed a smile on him as she was led away.

Dacre went to seek her in good time for his lancers. She sat on an ottoman in a distant part of the room, where the drooping folds of a curtain formed a shade from the glare of the lights. The blue and white of her filmy gown stood out against the dark background. Dacre hastened across the room to her.

"Miss Dennison—my dance," he said eagerly. "May I?"

She turned her pretty face and arched her eyebrows in surprise.

"Yes," said Charlie, "the lancers—you promised—oh, I beg your pardon. You're your cousin—I mean, the other Miss Dennison—aud, of course, I haven't seen you before."

Then, recovering from his confusion before the young lady could speak, he added:

"I hope I'm not too late to get a dance, Miss Dennison?"

Having secured this, he sought the other Isabel.

"Why in the fiend's name do they dress alike?" he muttered in nervous fear of another mistake. He might be continually coming across the one he didn't want, like a recurring decimal. Several times he bore down on a fair girl in blue and white, but turned away, deciding that he had only come to an Isabel in another place. The lancers had begun. It was in full swing before he came suddenly on a sofa where sat the Isabel.

"Miss Dennison," he stammered, "I'm so sorry."

"Pray don't apologize," said she coldly. "I assure you the delay is not of the slightest moment."

"Indeed, it was quite unintentional," said the unfortunate Charlie in despair. "I have been looking for you."

"I have been sitting here the last ten minutes, and you passed me just now."

"I saw a blue and white dress," acknowledged Charlie, "but some people come between it and me. Won't you forgive me and dance this? It isn't too late."

"I think my mother wants me," said Isabel, rising with dignity.

"May I take you to her?"

"No, thank you."

Charlie only got pardoned when everybody was going. He was mad with himself, but could not bring himself to acknowledge the real reason of his apparent neglect. He was sensitive about these constant mistakes. They went on happening, of course, the one Isabel laughing at him, which he dreaded, the other turning haughty and offended. He offered some flowers to a Dennison girl one day and she said demurely, "Are you sure they were meant for me?"

When else could they be meant for? said Charlie sentimentally.

"My cousin, perhaps—she's over there," said the girl merrily. Dacre was in unutterable confusion and took the flowers, scarcely knowing what he did. And when he turned and met the scornful eyes of a girl who said to the Isabel he wanted her, the girl he had left wasn't she?

It was impossible to present the scene in a convincing manner.

White Dome Geyser Yellowstone Park.

A mile and a half from the Fountain Hotel, and easily reached by bicycle, tourist wagon, or by walking, lies a hidden basin full of nature's caprices. At the entrance, as if on guard, stands the immaculate White Dome. As one approaches, he almost expects to be challenged and asked for a countersign. If such a challenge is given it is in a curious fashion, in the form of a geyser eruption, for the White Dome is a geyser. It is not unlike the Castle Geyser, or the White Pyramid of the Upper Geyser Basin. The geyser is a very white, rather dome-shaped mound, built up from the secretions of its waters, and is the most conspicuous feature of the locality. It is perhaps 25 feet high, with a circumference at the base of 75 or 100 feet. Its eruptions come at intervals of from twenty to forty-five minutes, being somewhat irregular, and the water is thrown to a height of from ten to twenty-five feet.
